Date: 11-19-2023

TWC was notified a scammer web page "twc-texas.net" is trying to trick our customers. While the page looks like TWC's Unemployment Benefits Services log on screen, we do not ask for the PIN and our webpages do not end in .net.

To help confirm a TWC website is legitimate, make sure the web address ends in .gov.

A screenshot of the TWC Unemployment Benefit Services login page. The page features a header with the TWC logo and "Unemployment Benefit Services" text. Below the header is a "Quick Links" menu with options like "Logon", "Sign Up for User ID", "Forgot Password?", and "Forgot User ID?". The main content area is titled "Logon" and includes the message "You have logged off." and instructions for new users. There are three input fields for "User ID:", "Password:", and "Personal Identification Number (PIN):", each with a red asterisk indicating it is required. A "Need help?" link is also present. On the right side, there are several informational boxes, including one about "Public Computer" usage. At the bottom, there is a disclaimer about security testing and monitoring under Texas state rules.
