

What is Child Care Services (CCS)?

The Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) CCS program provides child care scholarships for low-income families. As a CCS provider, your early learning program can assist these families in providing care to their children while they go to work or attend school.

Am I Eligible to Participate in the CCS Program?

An early learning program is eligible to participate in the CCS program if:

- The program is licensed or registered by Child Care Regulation (CCR);
- Is not on corrective or adverse action with CCR;
- Does not exceed the points threshold for CCR deficiencies incurred within the most recent 6-months; and
- Agrees to work with a mentor towards Texas Rising Star certification.

Early learning programs that are relative providers or regulated by the US military are also eligible to participate.

If you are not currently eligible to participate in the CCS program, contact your Local Workforce Development Board for assistance.

Points Threshold of 40 or lower

An early learning program's licensing history (up to the most recent 6 months) will be reviewed. Points will be given to any high and medium-high deficiencies found.

- Each high weighted deficiency is worth 5 points
- Each medium-high weighted deficiency is worth 3 points

If an early learning program has an initial permit or has less than 6 months of licensing history, the points will be assigned based on the licensing history that is available.

Raising Your Star Level

We're here to help you reach for more stars! Most early learning programs are already meeting or exceeding most Texas Rising Star measures.

✓ It doesn't take much time or paperwork to get started

Trained mentors are available to help you through the certification process. The mentor can help create achievable goals and processes to ensure you are successful.

✓ You will not be required to hire more teachers or teachers with degrees

Classroom ratios and staff qualifications are only two measures within the total scored, so their impact to the overall star level is minimal. Also, teachers working in Texas Rising Star programs are eligible for educational support such as grants, stipends, scholarships, and may receive preferred enrollment in higher-education initiatives.

✓ It pays to be Texas Rising Star!

Check out our revenue calculator at www.texasrisingstar.org/providers/enhanced-rates/ to see how financially beneficial being certified could be for your program.
